Applications are now being accepted for the 38th Neighborhood Leadership Institute, presented by the City of Dayton.

The Neighborhood Leadership Institute is a 10-week, 13-session program educating Dayton residents about local government, City of Dayton resources, and community leadership.

The 2023 program will kick-off on Tuesday, April 25. It is comprised of workshops, skill-building components and a day-long bus tour of Dayton neighborhoods. Participants hear presentations from community, business and government leaders on topics such as Dayton history, the role of city government, the criminal justice system, and cultural diversity. Class members also complete field assignments and a practicum requiring development of a grassroots project within their community.

Anyone interested in participating must apply no later than Friday, April 7. Applications are available at www.daytonohio.gov/nli and from the Department of Planning, Neighborhoods and Development, 101 W. Third St., sixth floor.

For more information, call 937-333-3203.
