

Steven Gondol named deputy director, Planning and Community Development

Release date: Friday, Feb. 28, 2020

---

City Manager Shelley Dickstein has announced the appointment of Steven Gondol as deputy director of the Dept. of Planning and Community Development.

Gondol joins the City of Dayton with 20 years of community development experience in cities including Baltimore, Detroit and Dayton. In Baltimore, he served as executive director of Live Baltimore, an organization working to revitalize neighborhoods, expand urban home ownership and reverse population decline.

"Steven brings passion for urban living and a wealth of community development successes to Dayton," said Dickstein. "We are confident Dayton's resurgence will be enhanced by his experience and abilities."

Gondol's community development experience includes fund and resource development, program and partnership development, housing market research, marketing, training, and team-building. He earned a Bachelor of Urban Planning at the University of Cincinnati College of Design, Architecture, Art & Planning.

###

FOLLOW US

---

Visit the City of Dayton newsroom