The majority of Dayton Public Schools students will return to the classroom for full-time, in person instruction beginning March 1, 2021. DPS students initially went to remote learning due to the COVID-19 pandemic in March 2020, meaning this will be the first time in nearly a year that students will be back in the classroom five days a week.

Students going back to the classroom means that morning and afternoon commutes in the city of Dayton will look very different for drivers from what they have experienced over the past 11 months, as more buses, cars, and pedestrians will be traveling on the streets.

Because safety is our number one priority, the Dayton Police Dept. is teaming up with Dayton Public Schools for media availability about school bus safety and laws, school zone speeds, and pedestrian safety. DPD wants to emphasize the need for the community to be more alert and cautious as students return to the classroom.
