A Dayton man indicted by the Montgomery County Grand Jury for felonious assault likely has other victims.

Jason C. Davis is facing one count of felonious assault for engaging in sexual conduct with knowledge that he has tested positive for a virus that causes Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome without disclosing that information to the other person prior to the sexual contact. Mr. Davis was also indicted for possession of criminal tools as he used items at his home to facilitate this crime.

Davis lives on Speice Avenue, which is where this incident and potentially numerous others took place. He was arrested after a month-long investigation by the Dayton Police Department Narcotics Bureau.

Mr. Davis advertised himself and his residence on several adult websites and telephone apps, as someone who would engage in sexual conduct at his home at no cost. Mr. Davis did so without disclosing his status as a carrier of AIDS. Investigators are concerned that there may be other persons, over a period of years, whom have interacted sexually with Mr. Davis who may also be victims.

If you feel that you have been a victim of Mr. Davis, the Dayton Police Department strongly encourages you to seek testing immediately, and contact Major Brian Johns, Division Commander of Investigations & Administrative Services (937-333-1110), so circumstances can be fully investigated.
