Dayton's Men of Color Committee continues to accept President Obama's My Brother's Keeper Challenge.

On Wednesday, November 2, Commissioner Jeffrey J. Mims will be joined by volunteers from across the region for the third annual Men of Color Go Back to School event, to present a positive influence for young men of color in classrooms throughout Dayton Public Schools.

The back to school event will be preceded on Tuesday, November 1, by a reception at the Dayton Cultural/RTA Center (5 p.m., 40 S. Edwin C. Moses Blvd.), featuring a keynote address by Tom Maulsby, president and CEO of the United Way of the Greater Dayton Area.

The Men of Color Go Back to School event is presented in cooperation with Mayor Whaley's City of Learners Initiative, President Obama's My Brother's Keeper Challenge, United Way of the Greater Dayton Area, Dayton Public Schools, and the Dayton Education Association.
